

Something Fishy A lorry crashed in Northern Ireland spilling 20-tonnes of mackerel, leaving a field covered in a sea of fish piled 2ft high

The 6,000-calorie brekkie

(BUT WE ONLY MANAGE ABOUT 1,000 CALORIES!)

The world's biggest breakfast has just been unearthed in Great Yarmouth, Norfolk. So ZOO headed to East Anglia to try and take it on. And failed miserably...

Breakfast, so they say, is the most important meal of the day. And one café in Great Yarmouth has taken that idea to the extreme by creating the world's biggest breakfast – a colossal 6,000-calorie monster meal weighing a table-buckling 9lb!

Jesters Diner in Great Yarmouth bragged nobody can finish it. Ha, we scoffed. So we sent one ZOO Man not unfamiliar with asking for seconds (or even fourths) to smash the "Kidz Breakfast" to smithereens.

Unfortunately, despite having an hour to finish the plate, we failed. Miserably. Even though we saw off half the sausages, eggs, bacon, some beans and mushrooms and all of the hash browns, we barely made a dent in the mammoth feed.

"We only did it for a laugh," says owner Martin Smith. "Nobody's finished it yet, and I don't think anyone ever will." Email inbox@zootoday.com if you think you can.

ZOO'S LAME ATTEMPT!

WHAT'S ON THE PLATE

- 12 rashers of bacon
- 12 sausages
- 6 eggs
- 4 black pudding slices
- Tin of tomatoes
- 8 slices of toast
- 8 slices of fried bread
- 4 hash browns
- An 8-egg cheese and potato omelette
- Sautéed potatoes
- Mushrooms
- Tin of beans
- 8 slices of bread and butter

WORDS: JON MOODY
PICS: DARREN RUSSELL